Tomato Varieties $4 ea or 3/$10

All varieties are open pollinated heirlooms from seeds that Marisha has been saving for the last 20 years.

Big Rainbow (80-90 day) ~ heirloom, indeterminant, large slicer; red, yellow and orange tie-dyed tomato; 1- 2 lbs, "tastes like salsa"

Canestrino ~ heirloom tomato from Portland Seedhouse, paste tomato, "they are out of this world just like from your Grandma's Italian kitchen"

Cherokee Purple (80 days) ~ old Cherokee heirloom, indeterminant, slicer, pre 1890 variety, deep purple-red color, old time tomato flavor,

Costoluto Genovese (85 days) ~ old Italian heirloom from the 19th century, dual purpose slicer/paste tomato, ornamental fluted shape, flattened shape with deep ribbing, wonderful for paste

Currant (65-75 days) ~ heirloom, Marisha's favorite cherry tomato for its vigor, taste, and ease of growing, extremely productive and disease resistant, smallest of all tomatoes, will self seed if allowed.

Galina (60 days) ~ heirloom, yellow cherry tomato type that Marisha thinks is better than Sungold because it won't split when the humidity increases in late summer. Beautiful, productive, and very tasty. This tomato will keep going strong until frost.

Hungarian Heart (85 days) ~ heirloom from Budapest Hungary @ 1900, reddish pink oxheart shaped fruit, large paste tomato, a crack resistant, hardy, meaty, tomato that can be used as a paste tomato or eaten fresh with old time flavor,

Jaune Flamme (70 – 80 days) ~ French heirloom, medium sized, indeterminant, slicer type that is known for a fruity flavor, orange, good for drying or roasting, apricot colored fruit,

Marisha's Cherries (60 – 65 days) ~ early season, all purpose, easiest to grow, very disease resistant tasty tomato that Marisha has been saving the seed for over 10 years. This tomato produces like a cherry, but the fruit is about the size of a golf ball, a one sandwich tomato. Good for fresh eating or canning.

Principe Borghese (70-75 days) ~ This is an heirloom, open pollinated tomato from Italy that is used for drying. It is the only determinant variety that we have. The fruit is grape-shaped and about 1-2 oz. It has a wonderful tomato taste that make it perfect for making sauces and paste.
